

How to find if a publication is a scholarly journal?

1. Go to Stockton's Library website
  2. Click on Database → Data Base List → Ulrichs web
  3. Enter the publication name you want to know about- whether it is an academic / scholarly journal or not?
  4. The serial type and content type column in the results will show you the needed information.
  5. For example: In the screenshot below, MIS Quarterly is an academic scholarly journal, while GO is a magazine
- Note: If the serial type or content type column(s) are not visible, click on "Change Columns" on the top of the table and select the desired column(s)

The screenshot shows the Ulrichsweb.com search results page. The search results are displayed in a table with the following columns: Title, Publisher, ISSN, Country, Status, Serial Type, Content Type, and Format. The table lists various publications, including 'MIS Quarterly', 'MIS Quarterly Executive', 'Minerals Industry Survey Report (Online)', 'MIS Report', 'MIS Week', 'MIS Information', 'MIS Australia', 'Info MIS', 'MIS 100', 'Mis Pluszek', 'Networking Management', 'GO (New York)', 'Tech IQ', 'GO (French Edition)', 'IO Magazine', and 'IO'. The 'Serial Type' and 'Content Type' columns are highlighted to show how they identify a publication as a scholarly journal or magazine.
